Dear Hiring Managers,

My name is Mark Liu and I am a graduating senior at UCSD with a double major in Mathematics-Computer Science and Management Science. I am looking for full-time opportunities related to software.

I have some experience with embedded systems and mobile application development, but most of my experience is related to web development from an internship and from side projects. I have worked on projects such as personal websites, CPMs, and android mobile application. I am most comfortable developing with Java, but I am able capable of developing in C and C++. I am also interested in Machine Learning and have been learning through free courses on Coursera. I understand there are a great amount of skills that I have to learn. Thus, I strive to keep learning important concepts and skills that were covered in lectures on my own.

Throughout my undergraduate careers, I have worked on many fun projects and learned something new every time. I had the most interest in projects that were multidisciplinary. For instance, my recent research project involved learning about circuits, electronics, physics, software, and hardware.

I appreciate your time for reading through my cover letter. If I am given the opportunity to work at your company, I promise to work hard to compensate for any skills I lack.

Sincerely,

Mark Liu
